O'Keefe, 28, and her

Murtagh, 20, a meat

HE SAYS: "Emily compered a sports function at the Gold Coast and got up on stage and straight away admitted that she knew nothing about sport so decided to make up for it by wearing some nice clothes. Everyone laughed. I was sitting with the owner of Hot Tomato (a radio station which Emily was working for at the time) and told him I had to have her phone number. Of course he said he couldn't do that.

Then, later that night they auctioned off dinner with her. It was a race between me and another guy. But when it got to $1200 I thought to myself why spend the money on this when I could spend it all on her? So I pulled out and the other guy got her. A couple of weeks later I ran into her at a Melbourne Cup function and we hit it off.

her. There are so many things I love about her. She's confident, intelligent, she holds herself very well, and she's very beautiful. Every day I'm with her I find something else that I like about her."

SHE SAYS: "I was MC at a function and was auctioned off for a date. There were two people bidding and one was Gerard. The other bought me. Gerard and I didn't actually meet that day. He rang to ask me out about a week later on the competition line, which happens a bit, but this was different. Then I was out one night with friends at a Melbourne Cup function and this guy came up and said 'I was the guy who called you, why won't you go out with me?' Let's just say we kissed that night. But I was trying not to get too attached. My friend just died and I didn't feel much like going out with anyone. She had an 11-year-old daughter and Gerard organised for 20 tickets to go and see Guy Sebastian. It was then that I thought, wow this guy is amazing."
